Museums, Studios & Galleries

Religious and civic buildings across the country showcase James Piercey's leaded glass windows and ceramic/glass mosaics – all created at the J Piercey Studios near downtown Orlando. The 8,500 square feet studio employs six full and part time assistants. All the work is designed in-house and most of the fabrication occurs in-house as well. More than 350 commissions have been completed by the J. Piercey Studios.

About the Artist: Born and raised in Jackson Tennessee where he also went to college - at Lambuth College. Attended graduate school in Memphis. His first commercial stained glass project was in 1764 while teaching science in various Orange County, Florida schools. In 1980 he devoted himself to stained glass as a career and opened the J. Piercey Studios, Inc. the next year. In 1986 he started designing and executing stone mosaics as well. Visit his website at www.jpiercey.com.
