Artist's Statement:

Eastern philosophy with mid-western pragmatism fosters my work. I create content driven art, which has an analytical component. My studies at the Art Institute of Chicago encouraged experimentation. My current work addresses social issues, perceptions and introspection. I endeavor to create visual literacy allowing for my pieces to invoke debate, dialogue and commentary. The attitudes and opinions in my art are narrative and coexist with abstracted visceral or emotional responses to subjects. The result is an analytical expressionist approach to art that is portrayed through a variety of mediums. A common thread is a desire to produce work that reflects transformation and change.
