Artist's Statement:

My creative talents began as a child living in Guayama, my native town in Puerto Rico. During my first few years of elementary school, art was always my favorite class. My natural instincts flourished and a great passion for colors and drawings emerged. During this period of my childhood I was engulfed in a magical and perfect world. I submitted my drawings and paintings into various contests at school, and was overjoyed whenever an opportunity to present or display my artistic talents came about.

As the nuances of superior school arrived, everything started to change. New obligations and goals arose, and little by little, I parted with my creativity. I moved from Puerto Rico to Nashville, Tennessee for work reasons, and then I moved to Florida in 2000. During that whole time, my creative talents lay dormant within me.

During the summer of 2005, while on vacation in Puerto Rico, my creativity was reignited while spending time with a beautiful person, friend, and almost mother, named Mildred Utroska. Mildred was a woman of numerous talents, painting among them. She was the driving force behind the awakening of my talent, and I commenced working on small projects for personal satisfaction. When sailing between colors and figures I began to experience hidden emotions, and with my creativity now exploding, I was able to reach lost dreams that I once had as a youth and feel the beautiful sensation of freedom.

Nowadays I enjoy creating art and being able to please my fans, and also look for ways to share my work with the world. I always thank God for all my talents, and it is through the use of these talents that I have been able to assist a group of needy children in Central America by donating my work for their gain. I also have many private customers that enjoy my creations.

I hope you find my art, and my life, as interesting as I do.
