Artist's Statement:

In the past 10 years I have focused my attention on man-made structures such as old bridges, art deco buildings, ice cream establishments, diners, and private residences. Some of the paintings surfaces have sprung from an early interest in American abstract expressionism. In art school, I painted large abstract, gestural paintings focusing on surface scale, color and mood. Now, I find working representationally has helped me find more content in my paintings. I use bright colors and patterns reflective of Florida's unique lighting and environment. Most recently I've been inspired to capture the unique culture of Florida's Fish Camps. These are individualistic structures that are venerable to being eroded by our quickly developing society.

I was born in Franklin, Indiana in 1954. After getting my MFA in painting from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in 1980, I returned to Central Florida to pursue a career in aerospace illustration. After doing that for twenty years, I have returned to my roots as a fine artist.
